iRIGHTS.LAB

iRights.Lab is an independent think tank based in Berlin. We develop solutions for the challenges societies face resulting from digitisation. Our team of experts for journalism, copyright and privacy law, communications security, licencing models and more provides research, develops and implements strategies, and offers a context for interdisciplinary discussion – to stakeholders from business, politics, the public sector and civic society. Our mission: to help use the opportunities of digitisation for the greatest possible benefit to society. iRights.Lab has no affiliation with any political party or a proximity to a certain persuasion.

VODAFONE INSTITUTE FOR SOCIETY AND COMMUNICATIONS

The Vodafone Institute for Society and Communications explores the potential of mobile and digital technologies to improve political, social and economic participation and to give better access to education. The institute is a think and do tank that fosters the dialogue between science, business and politics. It initiates projects and research, and publishes reports to give practical recommendations for decision makers. Through events and social media communications we provide a platform for debate.
